A. Identifying Transition Words
Highlight all of the transition words in the following paragraph.

Ever since I moved into my own apartment last fall, I have gotten out of the habit of making my bed--except on Fridays, of course, when I change the sheets. Although some people may think that I am a slob, I have some sound reasons for breaking the bed-making habit. In the first place, I am not concerned about maintaining a tidy bedroom because no one except me ever ventures in there. Secondly, I only use my bed to sleep in, so why go to all of the effort of making it when I am just going to mess it up again the next time I’m in my room. In addition, I find nothing uncomfortable about crawling into a rumpled mass of sheets and blankets. On the contrary, I enjoy poking out a cozy space for myself before drifting off to sleep. Also, I think that a tightly made bed is downright uncomfortable: entering one makes me feel like a loaf of bread being wrapped and sealed. Finally, and most importantly, I think bed-making is an awful way to waste time in the morning. I would rather spend those precious minutes checking my email or feeding the cat than tucking in corners or snapping the spread. Therefore, I will not conform to the rules on tidiness and my bed will remain unmade!

B. Inserting Transition Words
Read the article below, and fill in the blanks with suitable transition words. Don’t use the same transition word twice!

Pollution Solution

For many years, human beings and businesses have been polluting the air and water around us. ______________, the world has become a very polluted place, and global warming threatens our ability to survive on this planet. ______________, we can still change this and protect our future. ______________ we have already polluted the earth too much, there are several things that we can do to stop global warming.

______________, it is important to recycle the things that we use. ______________ recycling requires our time and energy, it is necessary to save the earth’s resources. ________________, we should drive more environmentally-friendly vehicles. Many larger cars and trucks cause a lot of pollution; ________________, driving smaller, more efficient cars can help reduce pollution and stop global warming. ________________, we should ask our government representatives to pass laws that force businesses to stop polluting. Many businesses find it cheaper to pollute than to take care of the environment. ________________, the biggest kind of pollution can be called "industrial pollution."

Pollution is caused by both people and businesses. ________________, it is important that everyone works together to make our environment a better, healthier place. ________________ global warming is a very real and dangerous threat to life on this planet, we can still save the earth and provide a safe and happy future for our children and grandchildren.

Reflect: Answer the following questions in complete sentences.

1. How can transition words help improve your writing?

2. Why is it important to have a paper that is well organized?