Reduce Car Pollution

There is many ways to reduce car pollution. I think that people should stop polluting the air by cars. I know that there might be some disagreements, but I have some ways to convince you to stop polluting the air.

Some people might say something like “I don’t have time to pick or drop people off.” Or maybe even “I like to drive all by myself.” Well I’ll just say “you can just have some company or maybe just drop them off some where near the place they’re going to.”

One way you can stop polluting the air is taking different forms of transformation. There are many kinds, like the bus, light train, Bart, bicycling, or even walking.

Another way to stop polluting is to stop buying cars! If you don’t buy that much cars anymore you don’t have to pay that much for gasoline. The prices gets higher and higher everyday. Another way is to stop spending your money on gasoline, cars, etc., and just spend your money on other things like your dream vacation or maybe shopping.

The most important reason is that if there is too much pollution it will be very hard to breath. If there is way too much pollution our lungs might even become damaged. Animals, plants, and other living things are breathing the same air as we are. So if we die they die with us if there is too much pollution in the air.

In conclusion, reducing car pollution is important because you won't be in a lot of traffic and you can save a lot of money. If people are not reducing car pollution, they should start because our bodies might become damaged.
